News from the Interior

An aboriginal named Mickey has been committed for trial, and proceeds to Sydney this steamer, upon three separate charges of spearing with intent to kill; the evidence given was most clear against Master Mick; but he protested (through an interpreter) that it was not him, but another black fellow, named Jackey. Two of the men, who distinctly swear to him, are the men I mentioned in my last communication, that were attacked on the sheep-run belonging to Mr. Uhr, at Tenthill; the other is a man of Mr. M'Dougall's , speared through the leg by Mr. Mickey.

Along The Coast

The Illustrations.

However, one might go on to any length with old tales of the coast, so I must stop and conclude with a word as to some of the pictures which accompany this. The Bulli page explains itself. Everyone has heard of the park. In the large double page of views, the picture of dew drenched ferns is taken on the Cambewarra Mountain road. ' No, I Swamp' is a picture at the great work done by the government in the draining of the Terragong Swamp. The Kiama quarries are most picturesque, and one picture(by Mr. Cocks) shows one of the stone- crushers at work. King Mickey is chief of the aboriginals at Lake Illawarra, and his photograph is by Mr. Holden.
